Scam, Phone/Email Attack

Scammers worked out scamming to the science. Be aware of unsolicited emails, emails with documents to be opened when you do not have a history with the person sending it. There are hidden links allowing scammers to enter information on your computer. Even if you know the person, but email content looks funny, call them (do not respond by email), their computer was probably hacked.

Rental scams - If you have a property to rent or you are looking for one, do not send deposit, or accept payment for the rent under condition that you need to send portion of the money to the agent who will ship renters belonging to your address. See the person renting or inspect property you want to rent before making decision and paying any money. Be aware about "long distance" rental, especially somebody claiming to come to Canada from another country. They may even email you quite realistically looking copy of the passport or another official government issued picture ID. And if it looks too good, it is probably the scam.

Check email addresses of emails sent to you. If email address or content looks fishy, it is, most certain, phishing scam. Just delete it. There is an email you can send scamming/phishing emails to: spam@fightspam.gc.ca
